

Here's what graduates tell us about the program:

- "The best thing I can say about these two years is that they have prepared me to win in the classroom. Winning in the teaching game means making my students successful, and the master's classes were filled with wonderful ideas on how to do that." -J.G.
- "Entering the cohort two years ago was the best career decision I've ever made. The program centered my attention on aspects of English education I had unknowingly overlooked, and it forced me to do some professional soul searching." -K.H.
- "I felt that I was among true professionals, people who really cared about their jobs and their students. To me, this was the greatest benefit of the program. Just being around these other teachers once a week reinvigorated me." -J.E..
- "I plan to take all I've learned from my two years and just run with it in my classroom." -C.H.
- "Doing research in the classroom has opened the doors for reading others' research, observing my students, thinking reflectively, and monitoring changes more closely." -J.A.G.

The faculty of the Michael D. Eisner College of Education, regionally focused and nationally recognized, is committed to Excellence through Innovation. We believe excellence includes the acquisition of professional knowledge, skills, and dispositions and is demonstrated by the growth and renewal of ethical and caring professionals—faculty, staff, candidates—and those they serve. Innovation occurs through collaborative partnerships among communities of diverse learners who engage in creative and reflective thinking.

If you are ready to earn a Master of Arts degree in English Education, you will be pleased to learn that our next cohort program for experienced English/Language Arts teachers is scheduled to begin in Fall, 2011. The program is designed to:

- broaden your knowledge of literature, reading, writing, language, and technology;
- expand your repertoire of teaching methods; and
- build your professional leadership abilities.

As part of the cohort, you will enjoy the opportunity to form close professional ties with a select group of candidates, remaining together for two years as you complete your coursework.

Key program features include:

- Degree earned in two calendar years (four semesters);
- Convenient class schedule with two classes meeting on Thursdays from 4:20-9:45 pm each semester;
- Guaranteed enrollment in program classes;
- Current theory and best practice connected to teaching in your classroom;
- Classroom-based research project in an area of your interest; and
- National Board Portfolio Entry activities as course projects.
